Data as of 29 January 2010

Investment Objective

The fund aims to deliver capital growth in the medium to long term through investing in a range of asset classes where the sources of returns may differ from the wider equity market. By combining these asset classes, each with different investment characteristics, the fund seeks to provide a less volatile return than equities.

Fund Commentary at 31 December 2009

As we look back on 2009 and forward to 2010, it is important to step back and realise that returns on all asset classes can be largely viewed as a collection of returns for taking on fundamental risks. Investors expect a higher level of return to compensate them for exposure to these risks. The rally across risky assets seen in 2009 has unsurprisingly meant that the expected returns to most fundamental risks have fallen sharply. This is particularly the case for economic and credit risks. From historically high expected returns earlier in 2009, these are now perhaps slightly less favorable than the long-term average. A good example of this effect is high yield debt, where returns of over 50% have seen spreads over government bonds fall in January to much more historically normal levels. Overall we note that expected returns to most fundamental risks currently seem reasonably priced compared to their historical levels. 2009's strong gains in risky assets are unlikely to be repeated in 2010, with the diversified strategy of the fund well positioned.
