Data as of 29 January 2010

Investment Objective

The underlying fund aims to provide capital appreciation through investment in a concentrated portfolio of quoted securities on a worldwide basis.

Fund Commentary at 31 December 2009

The best returns over the quarter were from shares of commodity companies: in local currency terms Anglo American rose 36% and Rio Tinto 27%, while Deere, whose fortunes are linked with farm incomes and therefore agricultural prices, was up 27% too. We remain positive about the mining companies though the shares are closer to our target valuations. At the other end of the portfolio, Nokia was down 11%, Pulte Homes (a US house builder) down 9%, and Mitsubishi UFG, the Japanese bank, down 6%. Each of these appears to us seriously undervalued. Two key factors offering encouragement are the rebuilding of inventories and the potential outlook for employment. In both cases, from October 2008, when everything seemed to stop, there were extremely sharp cutbacks. Now that a more normal service has been resumed, inventories, still low at the retail level, need to be rebuilt and there are signs that unemployment may just about have peaked in the US, if not in the UK. If both these things are so, then economies may grow quite significantly in 2010 and earnings would also increase more sharply than expected.
